They were only in their early twenties at the time. A group of friends who met up in Bar Kronen and enjoyed their youth through sex, alcohol and drugs. Occasionally they flirted with death and there was even the odd casualty. A lot of time has passed. Twenty-five years, to be exact. Now they have jobs, and they don't live too badly, some have married and have families. Almost none of them take drugs and the drunken parties have given way to wine tastings. When Carlos gets some news that shakes his life to its core, he feels he needs to get in touch with Pedro, whom he hasn't seen for all those years. Perhaps it will be no more than a meetup to reminisce over old times... or perhaps it will be the start of the last party.
