Marisol wants to go for a walk with her dog Peach. As she prepares to leave the house, her father, a sensible and cautious man, makes her take shelter from the imminent rain. An amusing story unfolds that teaches us about how overprotective parents can sometimes be. The story takes place on two levels: the inside of the house where Marisol insists on going for a walk with her little dog Peach, and outside the house. Marisol looks out of the window and, parallel to what is happening inside, there are other incredible stories taking place on the street.
